

Love Sacrifice and the ordeal to become a SEAMAN

Choosing to embark on a career at sea requires a lot of determination and courage but most highly entails sacrifice and torment to go FOR and AGAINST

For: a tax free salary, professionalism, high job fulfillment, amity, travel.

Against: anti-social, increasing commercial pressure, risk of being marched down the gangway in shackle, poor treatment of seafarers, dearth of social and sexual complement, negatively worldwide view of shipping industry. But most of all spending long periods away from loved ones/family/friends.

A kiss from a seafarer to his wife and kids at the ship's gangway, at the taxi terminal, at the bus station is the most bitter kiss a man can give...those many times waving goodbye were the most aching feeling no one ever want to feel. Because along with this goodbye is no assurance of ever coming back. That's what being a seafarer takes all.

Appreciate our seafarer's sacrifice for the love of family to give a better living. Put yourself in their shoes and you will know what "LIFE & LOVE really means.

I would like to extend my best wishes for the blessings of health and prosperity to Staffs and to all Marine Crew onboard Company vessel.
